

Welcome to the April edition of Palgrave Macmillan's eNewsletter for librarians. This newsletter will keep you up to date with the latest news, information and resources on our books, journals and reference publishing.

LATEST JOURNALS NEWS

➤ Back archive digitization complete

We have now completed the digitization of archives for selected journals from our portfolio. You can now provide your patrons with complete online archives for several key Palgrave Macmillan Journals including Feminist Review (back to Issue 1, 1979), European Journal of Information Systems (back to Issue 1, 1991) and the Journal of the Operational Research Society (back to Issue 1, 1950). Visit http://www.palgrave-journals.com/pal/information/archival_issues.html to view full details of the online availability of Palgrave Macmillan Journals.

Archived content can be purchased as individual years so you can build your online collection at your own pace when funds allow. Post-cancellation rights apply and no annual fee is required while you have an active site license. Ask your local NPG sales representative http://www.nature.com/libraries/contact_npg/index.html for a tailored quote including the journals and years you require.

➤ Access All Areas 2009

In May 2009 we are providing free, unrestricted online access to more than 60 Palgrave Macmillan journals – including Journal of The OR Society, Journal of International Business Studies, IMF Staff Papers, Subjectivity and Feminist Review. In addition, Palgrave Macmillan will also be making available a selection of our online reference content.

Email us at institutions@nature.com to set up your trial account. This will provide you with full administrator functionality, enabling you to fully monitor usage.

➤ Regain access to your online subscriptions!

All current print and online journal subscribers need to subscribe to a site license to continue online access to Palgrave Macmillan Journal Subscriptions.

If your access has lapsed, you need to contact Nature Publishing Group (NPG) to renew your site license for 2009.

Remember – the Palgrave Macmillan journals portfolio is available for site license access through NPG. To continue your online access, contact your local NPG sales representative (http://www.nature.com/libraries/contact_npg/index.html). If you do not have a NPG sales representative, contact:

p.brown@nature.com (for US)
m.larcher@nature.com (for non-US)

For more information about NPG site licenses, visit the Librarian Gateway: <http://www.nature.com/libraries/>

➤ News from Nature Publishing Group

Visit Nature Publishing Group's Librarian Gateway (www.nature.com/libraries) to find out what's new, including Nature Chemistry (www.nature.com/nchem) and new Nature Reviews journals. Pricing and licensing information is available from your NPG representative and can be found on the Librarian Gateway.

Join the discussion at NPG's new library group on Nature Network at <http://network.nature.com/groups/libraries>

With librarians from around the world, the group exchanges thoughts about the latest developments in publishing and library management.

LATEST BOOKS NEWS

➤ Out Now

The Palgrave Dictionary of Transnational History 'One of the most significant scholarly projects of the last decade' - Professor Emily S. Rosenberg, Department of History, University of California, Irvine, USA

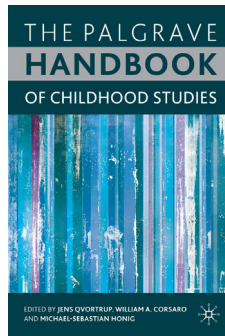

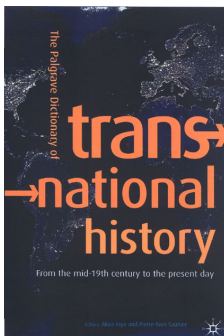

The Palgrave Dictionary of Transnational History is a unique easy-to-use reference tool with over 400 entries in an important emerging field in history. The work highlights that modern world history must be understood not simply as a sum of national histories or a chronicle of inter-state affairs, but also as a story of connections and circulation by people goods, ideas and skills.
