

Welcome to the January edition of Palgrave Macmillan's eNewsletter for librarians. This newsletter will keep you up to date with the latest news, information and resources on our books, journals and reference publishing.

Updates to the New Palgrave Dictionary of Economics Online

We are pleased to announce that the second update to the online Dictionary is now live. This update includes five new, specially commissioned, articles, along with 10 biographies of key figures from the world of economics that originally featured in the first edition of the Dictionary. The articles include a biography of David Gale by prominent author Joel Sobel, two articles on the economy of the ancient world, an examination of pretesting and a piece on the economic concept of 'Dutch Disease.' For more details, please visit: http://www.dictionaryofeconomics.com/resources/default/online_updates.

The third update is due at the end of February 2009 and will consist of eight new articles that cover a wide cross-section of economics.

Why not see for yourself how valuable the online Dictionary is for your library users and request a free trial today? We offer free two-week trials to all prospective institutional subscribers. Email librarians@palgrave.com for further information.

Online Samples

From 1st January 2009, Palgrave Macmillan are no longer offering a print sample copy from the Palgrave Macmillan website. Sample copy requesters are now directed to a selection of key articles for each journal. These articles have been selected by the marketing and editorial teams in consultation with external editors to represent each journal's scope and archive. Links to all of the online samples can be found at:

Feminist Review – celebrating 30 years of publishing

When 'Feminist Review' first appeared in 1979 it described itself as a socialist and feminist journal, a vehicle to unite research and theory with political practice, and contribute to the development of both. Now in 2009 and after 30 years of publishing, 'Feminist Review' sustains its unique role as an interdisciplinary, agenda-setting publication. Two special issues will be published in 2009 on 'South Asian Feminisms' and 'Birth'.

For more details on the current issues and the complete back archive, go to: www.feminist-review.com

Development – Theme for 2009 Volume

Volume 52 of 'Development' takes 'culture and identity' as its theme. The four issues will explore from different angles how culture and identity underpin political and economic decisions in development. Each of the four issues in 2009 examines an aspect of culture and identity in relation to development:

Vol 52.1. Sexuality and Development

Vol 52.2. Power, Movements, Change

Vol 52.3. Beyond Markets

Vol 52.4. Xenophobias, Culture and Identity

Pricing commitment

Nature Publishing Group's commitment to consistent and local-currency pricing for 2009 through 2011 will offer you some assurance during the current economic climate and help you forecast your costs and budget accurately. NPG has capped price increases at 7% in all major currencies (GBP, US$, Euro, Yen) for three years, starting with 2009 list prices. Prices are determined locally and are therefore not affected by currency fluctuations. This applies to all journals owned by NPG or Palgrave Macmillan.

Forthcoming library conferences
