

Contents

List of Figures and Tables	vii
Acknowledgements	viii
Contributors	ix

Drama, Fields and Metaphors: An Introduction to Football in Africa	1
Richard Giulianotti and Gary Armstrong

Part One: Contested Selections

1 Containment and Counter-Attack: A History of Eritrean Football	27
Alex Last
2 Football in Algeria: Between Violence and Politics	41
Youssef Fates
3 A Story of Heroes, of Epics: The Rise of Football in Nigeria	59
Wiebe Boer
4 Between Colonialism, Independence and Globalization: Football in Zimbabwe	80
Richard Giulianotti

Part Two: Footballing Colours

5 Ngoma Reverberations: Swahili Music Culture and the Making of Football Aesthetics in Early Twentieth-Century Zanzibar	103
Laura Fair
6 Football and Apartheid Society: The South African Soccer League 1960–66	114
Peter Alegi
7 Football and Ethnicity in Mauritius: (Re)Producing Communal Allegiances	135
Tim Edensor and Ibrahim Koodoruth
8 Chasing the Ghosts: Narratives of Football and Nation in Morocco	150
Gareth Stanton

Part Three: Off the Ball Movements

- 9 France in the Cameroonian Football Imagination 169
Bea Vidacs
- 10 Life, Death, and the Biscuit: Football and the Embodiment of Society in Liberia, West Africa 183
Gary Armstrong
- 11 Playing Against Deprivation: Football and Development in Nairobi, Kenya 210
Hans Hognestad and Arvid Tollisen

Part Four: Moving with the Ball

- 12 Three Geographies of African Footballer Migration:
Patterns, Problems and Postcoloniality 229
John Bale
- 13 The Migration of the Black Panther: An Interview with Eusebio of Mozambique and Portugal 247
Gary Armstrong
- 14 Extra Time 269
Peter Woodward
- Bibliography* 276
- Index* 289

List of Figures and Tables

Figure 12.1	African professional footballers in Europe, 1999 (source of data, Ricci 2000)	233
Figure 12.2	National origins of African players in Europe (source of data: Ricci 2000)	236
Table 12.1	Some dimensions of elite African footballer migration: selected countries, top division clubs only, 2000 (source of data: Soccerweb 2000)	232
Table 12.2	Major African sources of migrant footballers to Europe, 1999 (source of data, Ricci 2000)	235

Acknowledgements

The authors are indebted to the following people, listed in alphabetical order, for their contributions to the production of this text: Andrew Blaikie, Steve Bruce, Irmani Darlington, Mark Gleeson, Matti Goksyor, Geoff Hare, Rosemary Harris, Rolf Husmann, Pierre Lanfranchi, Murray Last, Emanuel Maradas, Phyllis Martin, Alison Moir, Anne-Gaël Plais, Rolf Schwery, Sally Scott, Peter Sloane, Eric Worby, Malcom Young.

We appreciate the separate contributions of Geoff Hare and Anne-Gaël Plais in helping our translation of Chapter 2. Thanks also to Sally Scott for typing up a draft.

Our thanks are also due to Karen Brazier for commissioning this text, and Jennifer Nelson and Briar Towers for tolerating us during the production process. Sincere gratitude is also due to Ray Addicott of Chase Publishing Services and to Tracey Day for her editorial work.

As always we owe a great deal to Hani Armstrong and Donna McGilvray who lived with the evolution and denouement of this work.

Every effort has been made to trace copyright holders of any third-party material included in this book.

Contributors

Peter Alegi is Assistant Professor of History and Director of the African American Studies Program at Eastern Kentucky, USA. He has lectured in African history at Harvard University and Boston University, and in sport history at Tufts University. His research on the social and political history of sport in southern Africa has been published in international journals and collections. His book Laduma: Football, Politics and Society in Modern South Africa is forthcoming.

Gary Armstrong is a lecturer in the Department of Sport Sciences, Brunel University, London. He is the author of Football Hooligans: Knowing the Score and BladeRunners: Lives in Football. He has also co-edited (alongside Richard Giulianotti) Entering The Field: New Perspectives in World Football, Football Cultures and Identities and Fear and Loathing in World Football. He is currently researching the role of football in the reconstruction of Liberia and the role that football has played in the politics of Malta.

John Bale teaches and researches at Aarhus University, Denmark and Keele University, UK. He has published many books and articles on various aspects of sports. Among his most recent works are (with Joe Sang) Keynan Running: Geography, Movement Culture and Global Change and Imagined Olympians: Body Culture and Colonial Representation in Rwanda. He has lectured in many universities in Europe and North America and has been a visiting professor at the University of Jyväskylä, Finland, the University of Western Ontario, Canada, and the University of Queensland, Australia.

Wiebe Boer is a doctoral student in African History at Yale University. A Fulbright Fellow, he is presently in Nigeria attached to the University of Jos researching and writing his doctoral dissertation on the transmission of British culture, particularly football, in colonial Nigeria. He was born and raised in Jos, Nigeria to Dutch/American/Canadian missionary parents, and completed his secondary schooling in Nigeria before undertaking his first degree at Calvin College, Grand Rapids, Michigan.

Tim Edensor is author of Tourists at the Taj and teaches Cultural Studies at Staffordshire University. He has recently completed a book, National Identity, Popular Culture and Everyday Life, and is engaged in an ongoing project on the aesthetics of British industrial ruins. Other work has focused on cultures of walking, cars, tourism, the film Braveheart, and rural and urban cultures.

Laura Fair is an Associate Professor of African history at the University of Oregon. Her research focuses on leisure and popular culture in colonial East Africa, and her publications include Pastimes and Politics: Culture, Community and Identity in Post-Abolition Urban Zanzibar, 1890–1945. She is currently working on a history of commercial cinema in Tanzania, Kenya and Uganda.

Youssef Fates is Docteur d'Etat en Science Politique at the University of Paris x-Nanterre. He is the author of Sport et Tiers Monde, and of numerous articles on the relations between sport and development, Islam, gender, international systems, and violence, as well as papers on Algeria's colonial history and its young people.

Richard Giulianotti is a Senior Lecturer in Sociology at the University of Aberdeen. He is the author of Football: A Sociology of the Global Game, and the author of numerous articles on football. He is the co-editor of several collections on football, most recently (with Gary Armstrong) Fear and Loathing in World Football.

Hans Hognestad is a social anthropologist and works as a researcher at the Norwegian University of Sport and Physical Education. He has published a variety of articles on football since 1995, mostly based on fieldwork within fan cultures in Norway and Scotland. His most recent project is focused on Norwegian fans of British football clubs, looking specifically at the construction of transnational identities and processes of hybridization. Other areas of research interest include sport and development and sport and space. He has also worked as an adviser on culture and development issues for the Norwegian Commission for UNESCO.

Ibrahim Koodoruth has taught sociology at the University of Mauritius for the past seven years. His areas of interest are methodology of social research, social theory and criminality and deviance. He has been working as national consultant for the UN Joint Programme on youth on the island of Rodrigues, and collaborated as national consultant with UNICEF in a study on the commercial sexual exploitation of children in Mauritius.

Alex Last is a freelance journalist who lived in Eritrea between 1998 and 2002. A Manchester University graduate in history, he later studied Arabic history at the American University in Cairo. Having lived for a time in Nigeria he is currently living in London.

Gareth Stanton is a lecturer in the Department of Media and Communications at Goldsmiths College, University of London. He has a PhD in anthropology and has conducted fieldwork in North Africa and southern Europe. Among his recent publications is a critical edition of Une enquête au pays, a novel by the Moroccan writer Driss Chraïbi. He is currently working on questions of world cinema.

Arvid Tollisen is teaching Sport and Physical Education at Fredtun College in Stavern, Norway. He is also working on completing his Masters Degree at the Norwegian University of Sport and Physical Education, Oslo. His fieldwork analyses development through sport in the Mathare Youth Sports Association, Nairobi, Kenya.

Bea Vidacs teaches anthropology at Baruch College, City University of New York. She has published extensively from research which examined the social and political significance of football in Cameroon. Her research interests include nationalism and ethnicity, the social imagination and postcolonial societies.

Peter Woodward held positions working for the VSO in Kosti, Sudan between 1966 and 1967 before becoming a lecturer at the University of Khartoum between 1968 and 1971. He is currently Professor of Politics and International Relations at the University of Reading. He has authored books on Egypt, Sudan and the Horn of Africa and is the former editor of African Affairs, the journal of the Royal African Society.

