Welcome to the new Palgrave Macmillan Law Catalogue 2012

This catalogue features all of our core titles, together with new books recently published and those that are due for publication up to June 2012. Highlights include three new titles in the critically acclaimed Great Debates in Law series – Contract, Family and Property Law - and a second edition of Criminal Law. This year also sees the launch of the new Palgrave Macmillan Socio-Legal Studies series, with the first two titles being published in April.

In this catalogue we have also included titles of law-related interest (in areas such as criminology and criminal justice) from other lists within Palgrave Macmillan. Throughout the catalogue you will find icons indicating where an e-version of a title has been made available. Our work on electronic publishing is evolving at a swift pace - for the most up-to-date information, please see the individual catalogue pages on our website.

We welcome all ideas for potential new books. There are guidelines for submitting proposals in the Information for Authors section of our website. We would be keen to hear from you to discuss individual projects or ideas more broadly, so please do get in touch.

CRIMINOLOGY AND CRIMINAL JUSTICE

Comparative Research in Crime and Punishment

Bill Heberton, Lecturer, University of Manchester, UK and Susyan Jou, Professor, National Taipei University, Republic of China

Our new century is an age of comparison and increasingly scholars and policy-makers are placing issues of crime and punishment under the comparative gaze. This book is distinct in the way it gives equal priority both to matters of comparative research and method and to contextual interpretation for the drawing of any policy lessons.

Globalization, Fear and Insecurity

The Challenges for Cities North and South

Sophie Body-Gendrot, Emeritus Professor, University Paris IV Sorbonne, France

Fear is ingrained in the history of cities but our short-sightedness prevents us from grasping its evolution over time. Increasingly, risk and fear are experienced, portrayed and discussed as globalized phenomena, particularly since 9/11. This research puts urban insecurity in perspective, with a comparison of world-cities in the North and South.

Male Rape is a Feminist Issue

Feminism, Governmentality and Male Rape

Claire Cohen, Senior Lecturer in Applied Criminology, Canterbury Christ Church University, UK

This book seeks to problematize knowledge and practices regarding 'male rape' and its relationship to feminism, examining this issue from a Foucauldian perspective. Feminist constructions of 'male rape' can plausibly be claimed to operate as a 'regime of truth', but one must question whether this is running counter to patriarchy.

Prisons, Punishment and the Pursuit of Security

Deborah Drake, Lecturer in Criminology, The Open University, UK

Drawing on research in men's long-term, maximum-security prisons, this book examines three interconnected problems: the tendency of the prison to obscure other social problems and conceal its own failings, the pursuit of greater levels of human security through repressive and violent means and the persistence of the belief in the problem of 'evil'.

Rethinking Miscarriages of Justice

Beyond the Tip of the Iceberg

Michael Naughton, Senior Lecturer in Law and Sociology, University of Bristol, UK

In this highly provocative and fascinating study, Michael Naughton radically re-assesses the notion of miscarriages of justice. Drawing on Foucauldian theory and 'social harm' paradigms, Naughton uncovers the limits of the criminal justice process and questions the dominant discourse that views miscarriages of justice as rare and exceptional cases of wrongful imprisonment.

Counter-Terrorism

Community Based Approaches to Preventing Terror Crime

Basia Spalek, Lecturer in Criminal Justice, Institute of Applied Social Studies, University of Birmingham, UK

This book examines community-based approaches to counter-terrorism through an analysis of the notions of community, partnership, engagement, gender and religion in order to shed new light on the potential of, and drawbacks to, these approaches. Basia Spalek stresses the need for policy makers and practitioners to reflect on the effectiveness of the initiatives that they are engaged with, particularly in relation to how community-targeted or community-focused they are.

The Criminal Cases Review Commission

Hope for the Innocent?

Edited by Michael Naughton, Senior Lecturer in Law and Sociology, University of Bristol, UK

This book focuses on the world's first publicly-funded body to review alleged miscarriages of justice, set up in the wake of notorious cases such as the Guildford Four and the Birmingham Six. Bringing together critical perspectives from campaigners, prominent criminal appeal practitioners and academic specialists, it centres on the different aspects of the CCRC's tasks, in particular, the limitations placed on it by its governing statute that hinder its claimed independence from the appeal courts and its working practices which prevents the referral of cases in which victims may be factually innocent. The book compares the CCRC with existing systems in Scotland, the US and Canada that deal with alleged wrongful convictions. Thoroughly undermining its operations, this study argues that the CCRC's help to innocent victims of wrongful conviction is merely incidental.

skills4study CAMPUS

A fully interactive e-learning resource for students

With the right tools, you can have sharper students

Our innovative new online study skills resource will help your students to develop. skills4studycampus is an ideal way to engage with students and improve their learning experience.

By recommending skills4studycampus, you can help your students write better essays, use greater critical analysis, listen closely in lectures, write clearer notes and face exams with confidence.

skills4studycampus focuses on the core skills required for success at university or college. The content has been adapted from The Study Skills Handbook by our experienced team, including the author Stella Cottrell, Director for Lifelong Learning at the University of Leeds, UK.

skills4studycampus offers modules on:

- ➔ Writing skills
- ➔ Reading and note-making
- ➔ Referencing and plagiarism
- ➔ Critical thinking skills
- ➔ New for 2011: Getting ready for academic study

Additional modules on Exam Skills and Presentations and Groupwork can be purchased alongside a core subscription.
