skills4study CAMPUS

New for 2010 – an interactive online study skills course for students

As the pioneers of study skills publishing for well over a decade, we are delighted to announce another new landmark innovation in the field with the launch, in 2010, of a major new interactive and online course: skills4studycampus.

skills4studycampus focuses on four of the core skills needed for university success:

- Writing Skills
- Referencing and Plagiarism
- Reading and Note-Making
- Critical Thinking Skills

skills4studycampus offers students access to a wide variety of interactive material, including diagnostic tests, activities and assessment exercises. Each module has been carefully designed to meet the diverse needs of a range of students – from school leavers to mature students to those with English as a second language. skills4studycampus can be used for class-based teaching, blended learning or as a self-study resource. As a tutor you can enrol your students and track individual progress.

skills4studycampus is quality-assured. It has been developed by the team behind The Study Skills Handbook – the UK's bestselling student text, including Stella Cottrell, and a wider advisory board of study skills and online learning experts from a range of universities across the UK.

With 24/7 access for unlimited simultaneous users, skills4studycampus supports your students to learn how they like, when they like, wherever they can get online. We hope that it will help you to get the best out of your students and help your students to get the best of their time at university.
